ANSWER SHEET

Jane Baker's ~~the~~ "Sludgy thief".

Jane Baker, an outstanding writer, has made her comeback from a prolonged trip abroad, announcing a new project. I asked Jane five questions about her plans, goals and impressions.

I: - Mrs Baker, it must feel refreshing coming home from afar. Have you brought any inspiration from foreign lands?

gr ✓ JB: - These years exhausted me. I've been so homesick that it inspired me to write about my hometown. I found relief in it. I talked to my mom about it and she reminded me of a fascinating story of my childhood. One day, a monkey just appeared in the town out of nowhere. ~~It~~ These animals are nothing extraordinary here, in Australia, but they rarely communicate with humans. This one, however, ~~was~~ seemed really friendly and it kept coming back to see us ~~from~~ from time to time.

I: - Such an interesting fact! Will this adorable ~~the~~ creature be featured in your work?

JB: - This story is exactly what inspired me to write a children's book.

sp ✓ I: - Will the book be educative, or rather simply entertaining?

JB: - A fun story, that's it. I don't feel like teaching children a life lesson, when I still haven't ~~learn~~ learned mine!

I: - Have you come up with the title already?

JB: - It's going to be "Banana thief". The plot revolves around a mysterious disappearance of bananas from all the shops. A group of kids ~~discovered~~ ~~en~~investigates the case ~~that~~ and ends up befriending the monkey. ✓ sp gr ✓ I: - Sound fun! Any more projects on the horizon?

JB: - No, just this one.

I: - Thank you ~~the~~ for the ~~interview~~ interview! Good luck with the book! JB: - Thank you!
