Writing

ANSWER SHEET

I: Today we have a special guest. Jane Baker, a famous writer, agreed to give our newspaper an interview not long after returning from abroad. Miss Baker can you tell us about the reason of your return? Didn't you have quite an eventful life abroad?

JB: Thank you for inviting me to the interview. Indeed, my life abroad was interesting, but now I want to work on my new book in ~~peace~~ a more peaceful atmosphere. Besides, I really missed my hometown.

I: Is your hometown different from what you remember? What do you think about its current state?

JB: Of course, there are several changes. The town is developing quickly. But it remains familiar and very dear to me, and I'm glad to see it changing. Did you know that?

I: You mentioned a new book you are writing now, planning now. Is it true that the story will take place in your hometown?

JB: Yes, it will. ~~My hometown is a~~ ~~Did you know that~~ My town is small as it may be, has a rich history, which ~~other sources of~~ many aren't familiar with.

The plot of my new book will be related to some of our local tales and legends.

I: Now that sounds like a catching story. Can you share with us something about the plot or the characters?

JB: There is not much I can ~~say~~ ~~now~~ ~~it is always better~~ The main character is a girl who moves to the town with her family. She makes new friends and solves mysteries as the ~~plot~~ story goes on. As for the details, ~~you~~ it ~~is~~ ~~well~~ ~~to~~ ~~write~~ ~~to~~ ~~know~~ ~~an~~ ~~and~~ ~~it~~ ~~would~~ ~~be~~ ~~better~~ ~~for~~ ~~you~~ ~~to~~ ~~find~~ ~~out~~ ~~yourself~~ ~~and~~ ~~you~~ ~~read~~ ~~the~~ ~~book~~ ~~will~~ ~~be~~ ~~out~~.

I: When are you planning to finish the book?

JB: I think it will be published ~~some~~ next year. Until then, I will share some parts of it in my blog.

I: Thank you for the interview.
